The Center for Health Leadership Association (CHLA) at the UC Berkeley School of Public Health is a student-run, professional networking organization. CHLA’s vision is to empower students to become leaders in the field of public health.

The CHLA is comprised of students from every concentration at the School of Public Health and is governed by a board of students who gain valuable experience learning how to build and manage a decision-making body.

CHLA aims to provide students with professional development opportunities that will:

- Give them a platform to take initiative and execute new ideas
- Strengthen key skills such as networking, communication, collaboration, and project management
- Build a strong network by connecting with local, statewide, and global alumni

CHLA has organized & led many activities, including:

- Mini-grants – a program that supported students across campus working on public health issues
- StoryCon – Call to Action, a conference that brought together graduate student storytellers and their public health stories
- Shadow Day, an opportunity for students to shadow a public health professional based on shared interests
- Networking events with students, professionals, and alumni
- Fun end-of-the-semester events, like the annual De-Stress Fest
- Happy hours, guest speakers, and much, much more!
